Jed Stone, Frillby United: « The History of Baron Von DrukerBerk - Part 2

In the mid 1800's Von DrukerBerk and his German and Irish navvies were famous, not only for building smooth sided canals but also as football teams. 'The Shamrocks', were a team of Irish Navvies while 'DrukerBerk United' was formed by German navvies. Playing football kept the peace between them until the coming of the railways when there was a parting of the ways. The German Navvies were no longer needed to make smooth sides to anything and the Irish proved to be capable railway navvies in their own right so the Baron's younger brother, (Bert Von DrukerBerk) took the German Navvies back to their homeland to build the German rail system, leaving the Baron with the Irish contingent to build railways in Britain. The Baron bought a mansion way up north and built the 'MoneyBin' Stadium near the little village of Minichester and the 'Shamrocks' joined the newly formed National League and played under the German name of 'DrukerBerk United'. The combination of the Irish/German accent did not blend in well with the 'Minicunian accent and DrukerBerk United was soon corrupted to 'Duckberg United' as which it has remained to this day.

Footnote:- The original DruckBerk team flourished in Germany and formed the basis of the German national team that smashed the pants off the British National team for many years.»
