Jed Stone, Frillby United:
«From Sports Section:- LONGDALE COURIER - Skelsthorpe

At the beginning of last season work on the new stadium for Frillby United was halted when the skeleton of Davidus Weckham a second century ancient Briton was unearthed with the remains of his racing cart. Farm Cart Racing, was the Brits answer to Roman Chariot racing and Weckham was the master of the art. Excavations during the course of the season have revealed that the burial was on the edge of Britain's answer to Circus Maximus in Rome. A vast oval arena where ancient Brits raced each other on farm carts pulled by specially thoroughbred cart horses.

According to Sir James Estdale, Chairman of Frillby United, as the ancient arena is away from the site of the intended Stadium work is likely to recommence in the near future. It is expected to be ready for use in a year's time. What is to happen to the arena remains or the remains of Davidus Weckham has yet to be decided.»

Deepak Mohoni, Slartibartfast FC:
«The Slartibartfast News editorial staff embarked on a Pan Galactic Gargle Blaster pub crawl after a rare away win for the team two weeks ago. However, they have not been seen since, much to everyone's relief. The players intend to retrace their footsteps once this season ends to locate and bring them home. This will also be an essential part of their preparation for the following season.»
